Control Risks, the global leader in risk consultancy, has been voted "Best Corporate Investigations Provider" in The National Law Journal's 2014 reader survey.

Top honors were determined by 6,500 National Law Journal readers who voted for the best legal vendors and law schools.

Control Risks' Corporate Investigations team has substantial experience managing and conducting complex investigations. Our experts are drawn from the finest legal and law enforcement, intelligence and investigative agencies in the world, including the FBI, CIA, Scotland Yard, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the UK's Serious Organised Crime Agency and many others. Together with our eTrium eDiscovery and investigations platform and other offerings, Control Risks has an unprecedented ability to launch, manage and bring to a successful conclusion even the most complex multijurisdictional investigations.

"A great thanks to our colleagues and clients in the legal profession for recognizing Control Risks in this manner," said Greg Esslinger, new Senior Managing Director and Head of Control Risks' Corporate Investigations practice for the Americas. "Our global team is best in class at providing discreet, resourceful and innovative services to meet the requirements of any investigation anywhere in the world. They deserve this national recognition."
